User Interface: TZeditor is a WYSIWYG HTML text editor. It provides a user interface that is familiar to the user, especially for those who are familiar with Windows. When the user is writing their article, TZeditor uses a visual format to display the article with all the necessary tags and formatting. The user has a WYSIWYG text editor for the article that they would normally use for writing a web page. The user sees what the article will look like once it's saved. A user can add pictures, text, or other graphics by using the graphical tools. The user can also format the text using various tools provided for size, alignment, indent, and color. TZeditor does not write the HTML code for the article, it just displays the editor so the user can see what the article will look like when it is published. TZeditor is a desktop application. It can be used with Windows operating systems. It is not compatible with Unix or Macintosh operating systems. TZeditor Features: The TZeditor application enables users to create articles for The Zone using their EditorZone accounts. After The Zone purchases the user's articles, TZeditor will automatically be updated and the users will be credited for the articles. TZeditor is a .NET desktop application. It runs on Windows operating systems. It has a user interface similar to that of Windows. TZeditor is very easy to use. As the user is writing their article, TZeditor will automatically format the text. It will also change the background color to match the current theme. The user can then add pictures, text, and other graphics to their article. When they are done, they can save the article to be published. TZeditor allows the user to attach pictures to their article. The user has a couple of options for positioning the picture in the article. They can attach the picture to the beginning of the article, the end of the article, or anywhere in the article. When the user attaches a picture, TZeditor will automatically provide a link to the picture. If the user has a PictureZone account, TZeditor will also add a link to the picture. If TZeditor does not find any pictures for the article, it will use pictures from the user's personal PictureZone account. TZeditor also allows the user to attach text to the article. The user has a couple of options for how the text is placed in the article. They can be
