I've used dd as well. I can't find any similar questions. What's the correct way to get it back? A: Your drive won't be functional if you don't replace the firmware. If you are on a small budget and can't afford a new drive you could borrow one from your (online) Siemens authorized partner (don't trust the manuals on the internet!) Actually you are more likely to succeed in your attempt if you use the official installer that the manufacturer published (when the firmware update will be available): This installer also should have presented you an option to replace firmware when prompted. Otherwise you're better off using the official firmware from the manufacturer. Neuroendocrine tumor of the lung and superior vena cava: a rare primary tumor of the intrathoracic venous system. We describe a case of primary neuroendocrine tumor of the lung with intrathoracic venous extension. The tumor developed insidiously over a period of 14 years. Imaging studies showed a heterogeneous mass which appeared to be limited to the chest cavity but was associated with enlargement of the superior vena cava and partial obstruction of the right atrium. At surgery, there was an intrathoracic venous thrombus and extension of the tumor into the mediastinum and subcarinal space. This case documents the unusual relationship of this otherwise extremely rare lesion to the thoracic venous system and demonstrates the need for complete staging of all such neuroendocrine tumors to facilitate proper treatment. Intraglomerular macrophage infiltration precedes apoptosis in the initial stages of chronic antibody-mediated nephritis. Macrophage infiltration and apoptosis can occur in parallel during renal injury; however, the relationship between macrophage infiltration and apoptosis is not well understood. Our objective was to study the relationship between macrophage infiltration and apoptosis and to define the time course of apoptosis during the course of antibody-mediated nephritis (AMN). AMN was induced in inbred New Zealand White rabbits with monoclonal anti-glomer 3e33713323
